

I talk to you through a cable, I send you messages through airwaves, I see picture of you on a screen
I want to send you a message but I'm not sure if you'd get it and will you know what I mean?

Why don't you come and find me? It won't take you too long
Why don't you come here and talk to me human to human

I don't know if you were laughing, not sure you get what is happening, all I see is L-O-L
You look so good in your picture, oh, I wish I was with you
Do you feel the same, how do I tell?

Why don't you come and find me? I haven't seen you for so long
Why don't you come here and talk to me human to human

So turn off your computer and turn off your phone
And meet me in a place where we can be alone
Forget about the world and the World Wide Web
No need to send me crosses when you can just kiss me instead
Human to human

There's no button for this inflection I think we're losing connection
Keep sending the same thing twice
Your voice is filled with sweetness, so why don't we meet up in real life

Why don't you come and find me? I haven't seen you for so long
Why don't you come here and talk to me human to human

So turn off your computer and turn off your phone
And meet me in a place where we can be alone
Forget about the world and the World Wide Web
No need to send me crosses when you can just kiss me instead
Human to human

I want you to walk with me in the park
I want you to take me home after dark
And I want you to hold my hand, I want you to understand

So turn off your computer and turn off your phone
And meet me in a place where we can be alone
Forget about the world and the World Wide Web
And think about me instead

So turn off your computer and turn off your phone
And meet me in a place where we can be alone
Forget about the world and the World Wide Web
No need to send me crosses when you can just kiss me instead
Human to human
