

Don't you just hate it when things fall through
And it feels like everything is working against you
The thunder echoes and the rain starts to pour
And you start to wonder if it's worth it anymore

But you can face it if you grab your coat
What does it matter if you're getting soaked?
Because tomorrow is another day
And by then maybe the weather will change

If your sky is turning from blue to grey
Just take a deep breath and blow the clouds away

Learn your lessons and count your blessings
When life is giving you lemons
If you're feeling like a seven turn it up to eleven
When life is giving you lemons, make lemonade, make lemonade

Sometimes it's too hard to let things go
And your mind fills up so much it goes into overload
In these moments it gets harder to breathe
But it gets better you've just got to believe

When it gets dark and nothing's going right
Try to remember you've got to turn on the light

Learn your lessons and count your blessings
When life is giving you lemons
If you're feeling like a seven turn it up to eleven
When life is giving you lemons, make lemonade, make lemonade
Make lemonade, make lemonade

Learn your lessons and count your blessings
When life is giving you lemons
If you've got too many questions but no one cares to listen
When life is giving you lemons, make lemonade, make lemonade